"Dave, your years at college will be the best of your life" is something I have heard throughout all of my days at Bryan, and to that statement I say a hearty "yes" and a confident "no." "Yes" because at this point in my life my years at Bryan have been the best to date, and "no" because I'm confident that the Lord has used my days here to prepare me for a future life of serving Him; a life which, if I will only yield to His directing, will never cease to grow more exciting and fulfilling as I daily learn more of God and seek to do His will.

But what of these days that are now drawing to a close? What have the years at Bryan meant to me? These questions are difficult to respond to in such short space, but I think they can be adequately answered by looking at three particular areas of growth in my life while attending Bryan.

The first and most obvious area for any college setting is that of learning. Learning, however, is more than just academic pursuits. Indeed, one of the greatest lessons the Lord has taught me in my Bryan experience has been in the realm of dealing with people. As anyone who has been thrust into a dormitory situation directly out of high school can attest, the first challenge of a college career is quite often found in the adjustments that must be made in both thinking and behaviour as one strives to learn responsibility in his new and deeper relationships with others, and growing to appreciate the needs and desires in their lives as well. This growth out of the self-centeredness of my high school days into a greater empathy for those around me has been greatly facilitated by my interactions with others on Bryan Hill, and it is these same interactions which have laid the groundwork for what I trust will be a lifelong pattern of the teachings of God and allow the truths learned to affect my life that I can truly grow in the grace that our Lord so richly provides.

The second major area of growth in my life while at Bryan has been in the area of fellowship. The friendships made and the lasting lessons learned from my times spent with people will truly make leaving Bryan a difficult thing to do. But so much greater than the sadness of parting with so many dear and close friends is the rejoicing in sharing, if only now for a brief time, in the love and fellowship provided by our common bond in Jesus Christ. It is these relationships with others on campus which have deeply touched my life in the past and present, and provide me with a sense of joyous expectation of the fellowship of all believers at the coming of our Lord and Savior.

Lastly, and most importantly, while at Bryan I have seen, if only vaguely, what it means to follow Christ, and it is the excitement of obeying Him that is the basis for my hope and confidence in the future. Of all the things I have learned from friends, faculty and staff members, and administrators during my student days on the Hill the most significant has been the all-important commitment to following Jesus Christ. I can safely say that herein is the true value of my time at Bryan, that I've learned that the only life worth living, no matter what occupation I'm in, is the life that is surrendered to and directed by the will of Jesus Christ in my life. Indeed, it is this same will that I seek even as I pursue future study in the field of clinical psychology.

What then, has Bryan College meant to me? It has meant lessons learned, friendships made, victories and defeats; but most importantly, it has meant the realization of a lifetime commitment to serving Jesus Christ.

of the Lord I would have been unable to bear. Isn’t our testing and trials in convulsions and comas many times. “These have been L-O-N-G and lonely; but for the grace that has lasted eight years, with five of these being in a hospital in Chicago. His faithful wife, Georgenia, reports that his illness has been a severe one, complete with silver and turquoise jewelry provided by friends to become one of their own.

ANGIE CAREER ’47 was honored recently in a celebration by her Navajo friends who had attended the same African field, to produce a dictionary in the Sango language by the end of the year. Angie recalls the great fun and friendship she had in Brazil, an experience which taught her the value of working with mentally retarded children.

MAX ‘54 and JEAN (McKee) ‘54 DNUNA returned to Camocim, Ceara, Brazil, along with PAUL and ELAINE SYERS, who were recently honored by their mission with the gift of a diamond chip pin in recognition of their 25 years of missionary service in Brazil. DONNA (BECHTEL) GAMBLE ’48 lives with her husband, Darwin, in Howard, Ohio. Donna is supervisor of the statement department at the First Knox National Bank of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, where she has been teaching since 1967.

DAVID WALTER SLIGH ’45 is currently a pastor in Louisiana. He is the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Alexandria, Louisiana. JOHN ‘46 and GERALDINE ‘47E ARMSTRONG Lawson, GA Christian Education

DAVID LEE LEEKOFFSTAD ’60, and PAMELA ’58 and Betty J. MCDONALD of Los Angeles, CA, are on an extended furlough in Greenville, S.C., from Central African Empire. They are working together with the deRossetts, their co-workers from the same African field, to produce a dictionary in the Sango language by the end of the year.

ANGIE GARBER ’47 was honored recently in a celebration by her Navajo friends who had attended the Brethren Navajo Mission School. She was recognized for over 26 years of service as a dedicated person who had been a chef, cook, mother, friend, and advisor to Navajos. In the community of Counselor, New Mexico, she has been known as a very good teacher and Scripture reader in the Navajo language, and one who is kind, gentle, friendly, and always has a smile for everyone. Angie recalls the evening as one when she exchanged her own flowered dress for the rich satin and velvet Navajo costume she wore on formal occasions. She always has a smile for everyone.
